Our myPath Care Model

To ensure we cater for each person's journey and achieve long-term results, we have created a unique approach to care for people with personality disorder. Our aim is to support clients to work towards a goal of discharge in to the community or step down settings following completion of treatment.

myPath is our unique overarching care model which serves to monitor service user engagement levels, manage their records, assess individual progress and formulate a personalised and dynamic care plan with measurable targets.

Within our personality disorder services, myPath is structured to support individuals who require specialist therapeutic interventions including Dialectical Behaviour Therapy (DBT) and Schema Focused Therapy (SFT). It is designed to help service users tackle their symptoms and progress with their lives. In addition, these services support with preparation for an independent life within the community, or for moving on to mainstream rehabilitation.

For each individual, a daily risk assessment is completed, which enables dynamic responses to individual presentation within any 24 hour period enabling immediate support to be provided. Each individual is offered a minimum of 25 hours meaningful activity a week, which is evidenced and documented within an individualised activity timetable based around understanding mental health needs, effective coping strategies and reinforcing daily living skills. Each individual's care pathway is reviewed in full by the multi-disciplinary team on a weekly basis and guided by a dynamic care plan which is closely linked to our specialist outcome tool, the Global Assessment of Progress (GAP). In our personality disorder services, the GAP allows us to measure an individual's progress during their admission, plot the positive developments and changes in well-being whilst formulating plans over potential future risks for longer term management. In applying myPath, the team around the individual is able to be responsive in their approach and use myPath to determine length of stay, ensuring that people move as quickly as possible to the most appropriate and least restrictive environment.

EE

The preoccupation over recent decades in mental healthcare with clinical outcomes has steered us toward detailed, often forensic measurement of what services do and what they achieve.

Enabling Environments, is a Royal College of Psychiatrists quality initiative that seeks to do the opposite - it measures something quite hard to quantify but absolutely essential for a service - the quality of relationship and therapeutic culture.

Ben Davidson
Business Development Director,
London and the South

Ben Davidson (use images from CYG 1484) is a trained Enabling Environments Assessor and has been supporting our personality disorder services on their journeys towards EE accreditation.

He says:

Enabling Environments represents a sea-change in the way quality is understood and measured, and it's great to see so many of our services embracing this model and achieving the EE Award. We have nine Highly Specialised Personality Disorder services currently on the EE journey. I'm delighted to offer this sketch of recent progress towards accreditation from three hospitals that are leading the way.

Dr Jon Van Niekerk,
Group Clinical Director

Enabling Environments are places where there is a focus on creating a positive and effective social environment and where healthy relationships are seen as the key to success. We are very proud to see Cygnet services embracing the principles of Enabling Environments and meeting EE standards. It is fantastic to see the progress and a real focus on what matters to service users and staff.

Mia McGowan
Expert by Experience consultant,
Cygnet Aspen Clinic

Expert by Experience consultant Mia McGowan has recently joined the Cygnet Aspen Clinic team, who are hopeful that the Enabling Environments Accreditation process will be an exercise in genuine collaboration. Harnessing Mia's passion and energy will be a key part of this.

Mia reports:

The thing about Cygnet Aspen Clinic is that it's instantly welcoming. It's homely. If you're in recovery you don't really want to feel you're in a hospital, you want to be somewhere that feels down-to-earth, engaging. The second you walk through the door here you feel a friendly, informal atmosphere where you can be yourself. I felt that when I came here in my first role of this kind, trying to figure out how to be an Expert by Experience rather than a patient. There are good relationships in the staff group and good bonding between staff and patients. The Patient Councils I've been to here are well-attended and vibrant - it's not always like that. And they're always trying to improve, from the Healthcare Assistants up to the Hospital Manager. If Enabling Environments is about relationships, and nurturing them, being at the centre of all you do, Aspen Clinic should have no problem.

33 Beds in 2 Wards

Cygnet Hospital Beckton has two specialist personality disorder wards, New Dawn Ward and Upping Ward. Our aim is to support individuals' recovery and integration back into the community, as quickly as possible. We have a multi-disciplinary team of specialists and offer a very broad range of therapies.

New Dawn Ward is an 18 bed specialist Tier 4 Personality Disorder service. Women can be admitted to New Dawn if they have a diagnosis of personality disorder, exhibit self-harming behaviour and are able to accept the need for help. Service users can be informal or detained under the Mental Health Act.

Therapy Programme / Approach

Dialectical Behaviour Therapy (DBT) is the main programme of therapy used on New Dawn Ward. The care pathway is structured in phases which includes a comprehensive clinical psychometric assessment, and formulation within 4-6 weeks of admission.

DBT Informed pathway features two cycles of skills training, weekly 1:1 therapy, ad hoc skills coaching and 1:1 crisis management therapy. Service users who are motivated and show commitment to DBT will undertake the full programme.

Adapted DBT pathway we recognise that standard DBT is not suitable for everyone, so we also provide an adapted programme, based within the DBT framework but tailored to the needs of individuals particularly where the service user may have an area of cognitive difficulty that impacts their ability to engage and process. There are various options available on how this is delivered for people experiencing attention, concentration or motivational difficulties including conversational, experiential learning and visual aid approaches. This is then supported with further individualised practice on a 1:1 basis.

Upping Ward is our Intensive Support Service for women with a diagnosis of personality disorder and complex mental health needs. The service pathway provides a robust programme of care for women with challenging, high risk behaviour who experience difficulties engaging with therapeutic programmes.

The enabling environment and staffing skills provide a robust and safe setting for individuals to focus on positive pre-engagement work through a wide range of approaches.

Our care model embraces a wide range of interventions including Cognitive Behavioural Therapy (CBT) and mindfulness. These are delivered within our 5 stage model of care alongside alternative therapies such as art and music therapy; offered to respond to affective, behavioural, cognitive, physiological and spiritual needs.

Gledholt Mews and Coach House is our service for adults with mental health needs or a personality disorder who have been able to progress through the hospital pathway and are looking for the next stage in their rehabilitation journey. This service has been designed around individuals from Kirklees in partnership with Kirklees ICB, the aim is to help these individuals along their path towards independent living.

The service provides supported residential care to individuals who are ready to take responsibility for the continuation of their own rehabilitation and recovery in a safe environment, whilst living in the wider community.

The service focuses on continuing practicing life skills and coping strategies. We concentrate on community based activities, the use of public transport, education and vocational therapy, job placements, work experience and development of hobbies and interests. Located less than a mile away from Huddersfield Town Centre with excellent transport links further afield, there are plenty of community based facilities nearby. For those individuals looking for a green space, there are a couple of options within a 5 minute walk, Greenhead Park and Gledholt Woods, popular for relaxing walks.

We have an in-house Multi-Disciplinary Team (MDT) wrap around service that is designed to support the individual in our care throughout their journey with us and is designed to capture and manage risk and relapse in community settings. The team consists of nurses, psychologist, psychology assistants, occupational therapist, speech and language therapists as well as 24 / 7 support from the nursing team. This means that we are able to meet the changing needs of our residents as they progress through their care pathway, while ensuring their safety is maintained and their independence supported.

Residents are encouraged to cook independently (with or without staff support) in the Activities of Daily Living (ADL) kitchen or their own self-contained flats, however the kitchen staff are available for assistance and to prepare meals in the large on-site kitchen.

Olivia's history

Born into a close family, Olivia's childhood progressed happily until she encountered the chaos of primary school, becoming highly agitated with frequent meltdowns and interpersonal conflict. Although she did well with classroom support, matters escalated once she hit adolescence.

Periods of elation and hyperactivity alternated with periods of severe depression, paranoia and obsessive compulsivity. Olivia's intellect and learning skills weren't in doubt, but she struggled socially.

Olivia struggled to form friendships and was bullied. By her mid-teens, minor self-harm had evolved into major overdoses, as well as significant aggression toward her family resulting in multiple in-patient admissions, including in psychiatric intensive care (PICU) and secure services, and a diagnostic formulation of personality disorder, Obsessive-Compulsive Disorder (OCD) and mood disorder.

Olivia remained with her family through a tumultuous period until age 19, when she was placed in supported accommodation. This quickly broke down though, leading to five unbroken years of psychiatric hospitalisation. The early part of this was characterised by extreme violence, significant Deliberate Self-Harm (DSH), ultra-rapidly cycling mood and frequent episodes of seclusion. Although latterly she formed two friendships and family relationships improved, significant risk remained and attempts to implement a leave regime resulted in renewed episodes of absconscion and DSH. The placement no longer felt viable.

When Olivia came to us

Aged 22, Olivia was in a service some 250 miles from home, chosen primarily due to the proximity of a low secure ward with seclusion facilities, and being the only service that would accept her level of risk. The commissioning team recall the meeting where this move had been agreed and had never seen so many professionals and agencies holding such anxiety, all insisting Olivia could not be managed anywhere other than in a PICU. Two years on, Olivia was no longer in the hopeless place she had been when admitted, but regular, high risk incidents continued and her parents worried that she would need to be in hospital forever.

Although a move back to area appeared to offer the possibility of a new start, and she certainly wanted to return home, even the usually optimistic commissioner questioned the wisdom of another rehabilitation placement, envisaging instead a pathway ending in a care home with significant additional staffing.

Upping Ward assessed Olivia. The team were initially unsure whether they would be able to support her but following a second review and with some misgivings, offered her a placement, which the commissioners accepted with equal apprehension. Olivia and her family were also worried – in the weeks before the move incidents increased, additional 1-to-1 care was implemented and the move was postponed several times before transfer. Her family felt dread at the prospect of Olivia's violence and turmoil once again at their door.

I feel for young patients referred into adult services from long spells, sometimes years of inpatient treatment in CAMHs. Often there's diagnostic confusion, usually significant behavioural challenge, and inevitably a long history of placement breakdowns and repeated rejection from services.

- Dr. Christina Kyriakidou, Clinical Director, Complex Care Programme, South London Partnership

Olivia's care

From the moment she arrived, the Upping Ward team put considerable effort into engaging with Olivia on her terms. She had specific concerns and strong preferences about her medication regime and aspects of her diagnosis, giving the service a chance to let her know her voice was heard and experience validated; and she appeared to have significant neuro-diverse traits that needed formal assessment and accommodation. Rapport grew quickly and within a fortnight of admission the additional 1-to-1 care Olivia had required for years was ceased.

The team recall that Olivia was "always in your face, asking for things" and "wouldn't let go until she was satisfied", for example needing ward round decisions typed up, printed and handed to her straight away. The ambiguity of things happening 'later' was intolerable to her. These demands felt easier for staff to understand seen through the lens of Autism Spectrum Disorder (ASD) rather than Personality Disorder. It became clear the staff team would be better equipped to work with Olivia if a programme of ASD training for the whole service was commissioned. The psychology team led this with the support of Cygnet Hospital Beckton's senior Expert by Experience. They also worked closely with Olivia herself, delivering sessions tailored to ensure they were accessible, helping her better understand her diagnosis and learn coping and interpersonal skills.

With raised ASD awareness and a detailed OT sensory assessment / sensory safety plan, the team realised the extent to which noise was a trigger for sensory overload in Olivia.

Understanding an absconscience early in her admission in this context allowed the team to be more sensitive to her needs, rather than simply restricting her freedom due to a poorly understood risk. It also allowed them to engage with Olivia's family, whose home she had absconded to. This wasn't always easy, particularly when the team decided to rescind Olivia's MHA detention, which initially the family felt was a terrible idea. But with considerable efforts to reach compromise between what Olivia wanted and what her parents thought best, we helped them to trust us more and also to trust Olivia. They attended ward rounds and CPA meetings regularly, and over time they came to understand the benefits of positive risk-taking and reduced restrictive practice, let go their fears and cautiously embraced the enabling environment the team sought to create and the treatment plan agreed with Olivia.

The open culture of regular clinical meetings, where family and Olivia herself were treated as equal partners, had a profound effect on the family dynamics. Olivia started to have brief periods of home leave, with escorts for these trips gradually withdrawn. Within four months of admission she enjoyed unescorted day leave, then overnight stays with her family.

At the same time, the diagnostic complexity that had surrounded Olivia for years was unravelled. It was determined that she had bi-polar affective disorder, Attention Deficit Hyperactivity Disorder (ADHD) and Complex Post-Traumatic Stress Disorder (c-PTSD). The Complex PTSD itself needed understanding in the context of her traumatic social relationships arising from her now formally diagnosed ASD.

Olivia Today

Olivia is now channelling her ADHD well. Physical health is important to Olivia and in the latter period of her 12-month admission to Upping Ward she became very involved in a local sport charity. She became a constant positive influence on her peers. Olivia co-facilitated community meetings, and showed her peers they could do so too. She supported peers when in distress. One said, "You don't want to be Olivia's friend if you're not willing to engage in your recovery".

After a tumultuous and often traumatic journey over the last decade, Olivia looks after her own medication needs, has been discharged from Mental Health Act (MHA) detention, and is now discharged from Upping Ward to supported living. Olivia viewed multiple options and exercised her choice where she wanted to live close to family, allowing her to create a secure support network.

Olivia has learnt how to exercise leadership (she took on a paid role in a tiered vocational pathway, chairing community meetings), and on a good day slows down to a pace others can enjoy.

According to her parents at her final Care Programme Approach (CPA) meeting, "This is the best place our child has been in." Olivia's leaving card included several messages from staff and peers at the sports charity, testifying to the progress she has made.
