

A Young White British Princess

A young White British Princess, having her photo taken, a stardom to come. This Princess is joyful and humbled (feeling honoured). And, this experience of a lifetime, has made this young girl have inner shyness about what is coming next for her.

I took this particular photo of this beautiful Princess portrait view, lowered at an angle to capture everything, that I can possibly imagine. To the point where – the White British girl is showing her inner-self when looking elsewhere whilst I, took it upon myself to get part of the Princess's side view of her face, with the lens on my iPhone camera!

A rise to fame, even though this young girl had been overwhelmed and couldn't be more happier when being asked to be our Model (The Exhibition happening).

I am stunned as well as really proud of my Photography work of this young Princess who has come to anticipating her famous outcome! This being star-strucked as a White British Princess. Was naturally talented, although a hint of shyness when being directed at first.

Written By Miss Charmaine Burch

A Bus route reflecting on life near and far as the eye can see

Live life to the full - when taking people out on journeys. Through, the scenic routes of the world that we live in.

I, took it upon myself, to take this shot of the Bus – upstairs. This is because of its fancy-looking spiral staircase attached at the very back of the bus as you board the transport. Where you'll find the Ticket(s) Conductor with the Driver of course. The 103 bus done a loop route; Rainham to Chase Cross back to Rainham again. Although, raising funds for very sick patients in aid of Cancer Research UK, in Hospices. Although, MacMillan have a modern Green bus model down at the London Boroughs of Havering such as Romford and Harold Wood/Harold Hill areas.

This photo represents the fact that anyone who loves buses to this day of the new models will very much enjoy spending quality time on this vintage-style version. The olden bus company is a Routemaster RT1790, KYY 668 Registration plate part of the London Bus Company. Red on the outside.

The memory that I got, that comes to my mind is my family Heritage. This is when my Dad Kev Mother, known to me as Nanna M.E.Room married to a Veteran Serviceman – my Grandad Albert R Burch, who fought the battle in World War 2, but not World War 1. Who had his ear blown off by a gun fire, however, wore an Hearing Aid piece, on one ear only. Both Sadly passed on when since I was a Teenager.

Written By Miss Charmaine Burch

A Bus route reflecting on life near and far as the eye can see

Live life to the full - when taking people out on journeys. Through, the scenic routes of the world that we live in.

I, took it upon myself, to take this shot of the Bus – upstairs. This is because of its fancy-looking spiral staircase attached at the very back of the bus as you board the transport. Where you'll find the Ticket(s) Conductor with the Driver of course. The 103 bus done a loop route; Rainham to Chase Cross back to Rainham again. Although, raising funds for very sick patients in aid of Cancer Research UK, in Hospices. Although, MacMillan have a modern Green bus model down at the London Boroughs of Havering such as Romford and Harold Wood/Harold Hill areas.

This photo represents the fact that anyone who loves buses to this day of the new models will very much enjoy spending quality time on this vintage-style version. The olden bus company is a Routemaster RT1790, KYY 668 Registration plate part of the London Bus Company. Red on the outside.

The memory that I got, that comes to my mind is my family Heritage. This is when my Dad Kev Mother, known to me as Nanna M.E.Room married to a Veteran Serviceman – my Grandad Albert R Burch, who fought the battle in World War 2, but not World War 1. Who had his ear blown off by a gun fire, however, wore an Hearing Aid piece, on one ear only. Both Sadly passed on when since I was a Teenager.

Written By Miss Charmaine Burch